

World Heritage List

A World Heritage Site is a place (such as a building, city, complex, desert, forest, island, lake, monument, or mountain) that is listed by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) as being of special cultural or physical significance.

In November 1972, the UNESCO inaugurated the list by adopting a treaty known as the World Heritage Convention. Its continuing goal is to recruit the world community in identifying cultural and natural properties of “outstanding universal value”.

UNESCO officials do not see the sites as simply a list of superlative places; World Heritage status commits the home nation to protect the designated location.

The World Heritage programme has scored high-profile successes. It exerted pressure to halt a highway near Egypt’s Giza Pyramids, block a salt mine at a grey whale nursery in Mexico, and cancel a dam proposal above Africa’s Victoria Falls.

To be included on UNESCO’s World Heritage List, sites must be of “outstanding universal value” and meet at least one of the following ten selection criteria:

1. Human creative genius – to represent a masterpiece of human creative genius
2. Interchange of values – to exhibit important human values, developments in architecture or technology, monumental arts, town-planning or landscape design
3. Testimony to cultural tradition – to bear a unique or at least exceptional testimony to a cultural tradition or to a civilization which is living or which has disappeared
4. Significance in human history – to be an outstanding example of a type of building, architectural or technological ensemble or landscape which illustrates (a) significant stage(s) in human history
5. Traditional human settlement – to be an outstanding example of a traditional human settlement, land-use, or sea-use, especially when it has become vulnerable under the impact of irreversible change
6. Heritage associated with events of universal significance – to be directly or tangibly associated with events or living traditions, with ideas, or with beliefs, with artistic and literary works of outstanding universal significance
7. Natural phenomena or beauty – to contain superlative natural phenomena or areas of exceptional natural beauty and aesthetic importance
8. Major stages of Earth’s history – to be outstanding examples representing major stages of Earth’s history
9. Significant ecological and biological processes – to be outstanding examples representing significant on-going ecological and biological processes in the evolution and development of terrestrial, fresh water, coastal and marine ecosystems and communities of plants and animals
10. Significant natural habitat for biodiversity – to contain the most important and significant natural habitats for conservation of biological diversity.
